

Digital TV is the Future

Mark your calendar

February 17, 2009

A Need to Educate and Inform

- By February 17, 2006 all 1752 TV stations will be broadcasting digital signals into 211 markets.
- DisplaySearch research indicated 63% of people planning to buy a TV want an HDTV-ready set. They also found 40% did not understand the benefits of HDTV.
- 49% of buyers are planning to buy a flat panel TV for their next purchase.
- Only 1/3 of those with HD-capable TV sets subscribe to an HDTV service or even watch HDTV programming.

A Need to Educate and Inform

- Today there are 45 million “broadcast-only” TV’s in homes without cable or satellite service.
- Confusion over the government DTV Converter program
- CEA’s leadership is asking the industry to support an unprecedented joint effort to educate consumers on this issue.
- The ubiquitous call from the industry for more education on the digital TV transition and HDTV mandates action
- Retailers need better trained sales people

Industry Comments

- CEA's Gary Shapiro says, "consumers continue to embrace this exciting new technology as we move apace to the end of analog broadcasting."
- Panasonic's CTO, Paul Liao said, "Consumers routinely misunderstand the benefits and features of HDTV, such as improved resolution, color and brightness."

Industry Comments

- Sony Electronics President Stan Glasgow said at the HDTV Conference, “Some of us have confused ourselves as to what’s going on (regarding HDTV). You can imagine how consumers are feeling”.
- Best Buy’s Brad Anderson, vice-chairman/CEO of says, “there will be explosive sales in 2008...it is important to have a path — a graceful path — to get everyone there.”

The HDTV Expo

- 3-Days (Friday, Saturday & Sunday)
- Free Admission for Attendees
- Consumer Briefings
 - Industry experts
 - Company representatives
- Displays & Demonstrations
 - Exhibit area for displays and individual demonstrations
 - Door prizes, tschotchkes, free drawings
- Supports local training on Digital TV and HDTV for retail sales people

Consumer Education

- General Topics include:
 - “Digital HDTV Made Simple – (HDTV 101)”
 - “Types of Video Displays”
 - “How Does it all Connect”
 - “HDTV Programming Available in your Area”
 - “Get the Most from Your DVD’s and What’s Ahead”
 - “How to Make it Sound as Good as it Looks”
 - “Getting the Pictures and Sound Around your House”

Industry Briefings

■ Sponsored Sessions

- Company hosted briefings on a variety of topics including:
 - HDTV Sources: DirecTV, DISH, Cable Co., Telco, Media
 - HDTV Accessories: TV, Cables, Antennas, Audio, Distribution, Etc.
 - Retail Stores: The Local Experts

Local & National Promotion

- Television
 - Local network affiliates promoting their digital TV initiatives
 - Ads and cross promotions
- Newspapers
 - Preferably tied to the TV network affiliate
 - Ads and cross promotions
- Radio
 - Ads and cross promotions
- Retailer's
 - Retail sales persons
 - POS

The Reasons You Need The HDTV Expo

- Local Advertising tags
- Media Press Coverage
- Hundreds of hot prospects ready to buy
- Comfy with the knowledge and relationships they discovered at the Expo
- Supports your retail sales channel

Fall 2006 Tour Markets

Rank	Designated Market Area	TV Homes
44	Memphis	657,670
34	Cincinnati	880,190
39	Columbus, OH	890,770

- Nov. 17-19, Dec. 1-3, Dec. 8-10
- Both DISH and DIRECTV HD Local Channels supported
- Demographics track similar consumer events and HDTV buyer profiles
- 2.4 million homes in these 3 markets

Exhibitor Opportunities

- Full Tour and Single Event Exhibitors
- Booths from 10'x10' to 20'x80' available
- HD signals sources available for your display
- Complete list of attendees with contact info and email addresses
- Ability to make custom presentations to attendees

Sponsorship Opportunities

- Full Tour and Single Event Sponsorships
- Various Activity Sponsorships
- Entrance and Foyer Advertising
- Media Advertising and PR tie-ins
- Registration and Floor
 - Tote Bags
 - Badge and Lanyards
 - Show programs
 - Desk signage
- Refreshments

The HDTV Expo

Digital TV is the Future

Are you on the bandwagon?